Each crossing of the link becomes an edge in the corresponding blink, the graph whose vertices are distinguished points placed at the interior of the gray faces and in 1-1 correspondence with these in a bicoloration of the faces of the diagram into white and gray.

The thick edge of the blink is gray if the upper strand is from northwest to southeast

The thick edge of the blink is black if the upper strand is from northeast to southwest